Room 124 News:

December is always way too short for all the curriculum we need to fit in this month! We will do our best to stay on track even though we have tons of performances, celebrations, and other events. We are working hard on multiplication and division strategies in module 3. Our mid-module test will be on Friday. We plan to take the end of module test Wednesday, December 18th. Please remember to practice math facts at home each evening. Mrs. Bixler is working on animal survival in biomes and ecosystems. Students are ending December with a new STEM challenge. In social studies, we are starting to explore other types of government around the world. Our test is December 12th. After our test we will turn our focus to learning about winter holidays celebrated around the world. In writing we are working hard on our personal narratives. This week we are learning about similes, personification, and dialogue. Warm wishes!

Holiday Class Celebration

Our next class celebration will be on Friday, December 20th from 1:40-2:40 pm. We will have a craft, snack, game and read aloud.

Again, I ask that each family waits to join us for our celebration until it is their time to help organize.

If your family is responsible for helping host the winter celebration, you will get an email from our group of room parents with details on dividing the tasks. Thank you in advance!

Marble Party

We earned our first marble party of the year! The class voted to have a "camp out".

This means students will work in sleeping bags instead of desks and we will use flashlights instead of the classroom lights. Students may wear comfy clothes, but not PJs.

Polar Express/PJ Day

The third grade will read and watch The Polar Express. Students are encouraged to wear their PJs this day. (December 19th)
